Our FGM Champions Training

Female genital mutilation refers to procedures that intentionally alter or cause injury to the female genital organs for non-medical reasons. The practice is a gross violation of women and girls rights and is illegal in the UK.

Africa Advocacy Foundation is part of a nationwide initiative working to end female genital mutilation. We aim to create awareness, educate and empower young African women and girls at risk of FGM within practicing communities. We deliver a range of activities including campaigns, information, advice and guidance, small group discussions, referrals and support.

The community champions training highlights the physical and mental effects of FGM and the relevant laws in the UK. It also equips champions with the skills and tools necessary to engage with communities, communicate FGM messages and advocate effectively.

We are looking for community champions willing to commit a few hours a week to help us in creating awareness and empowering communities to help end FGM.

As a community champion you will be contributing to this very important initiative while gaining key life skills. You will also receive ongoing support and references for further training and/or employment.
